TECH DATA CORPORATION,

Defendant.

AND RELATED THIRD PARTY
ACTION.Civil Action No. 04-148 (GMS)
[Bk Adv. Case No. 03-50501 (PJW)][Related to Docket Nos. 70 and 84]*PLAINTIFF'S REPLY RE ITS MOTION FOR LEAVE TO FILE MOTIONS IN LIMINE

Defendant's Opposition (Docket # 84) is clearly disingenuous, and should be summarily rejected. While Plaintiff disagrees with Defendant's reading of the Court's Scheduling Order to require that motions in limine be filed in advance of the Pretrial Order¹, Defendant incredibly omits that it not only did not comply with this reading, but also (1) Defendant did not identify ANY motions in limine in the Pretrial Order, and yet it filed two such motions, and (2) neither of Defendant's motions in limine complied with the briefing requirements of the Court's Scheduling Order limiting motions in limine to 5 pages.

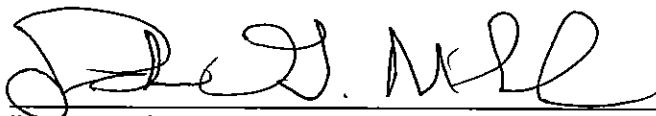

In this light, Defendant's cries of improper tactics are patently offensive. Plaintiff filed its motions in good faith, and filed this Motion for Leave to inform the Court of its reading of the applicable rules and its intentions. Defendant not only cannot point to any prejudice from a different reading of the applicable motion in limine rules, but also has violated its own reading of the rules, as well as the other related rules noted above, and has not sought leave from the Court on any of these issues. Plaintiff respectfully requests that its Motion for Leave be granted.
